HONGKONG, DECEMBER 4TH, 1888.

THE Singapore Free Press, in drawing at. tention to a recent letter by Mr. Howard LIVESEY to the Times on corporal punishment as a crime cure, recalls some remarks tice of the Straits Settlements on whipping. Sir THOMAS SIDGREAVES thought that the extension of this form of punishment would tead towards diminishing the prevalence of crime and, the increase in the number of oriminals. He said :- "I am quita sure that by the extention of the power of whipping we should be able to meet the criminals on more equal terms. They do not care very much for our imprisonment. They come From their equalid homes, where they do not know of such a thing as ventilation, and if into our prisons, and with regular diet, restraint from bad habits, and perhaps deprivation of opium, they come out in better con dition than they went in, and are the envy of their honest neighbours, -co that for six weeks or two months the gaol is to some the rattan more mequently made use of, the very much diminished also." Even where discipline is severe it does as a deterrent to the extent that flogging would, for the reason that its pain does not present itself in such a vivid form to the imagination as the pain of corporal punishment. Every one knows what the latter means, but with a oriminal sentenced to a short term of imprisonment for the first time, the prevailing pentiment as he enters the gaol is very probably one of simple curiosity; and that imprisonment is not an effective deterrent is proved by the fre- be an accomplished fact, do not think it can be quent convictions of the same individual. There are indications, however, of a modification of that disfavour being in progress, and of a recognition. of the proper use of whipping springing up Our Singapore contemporary aprly re marks, that as all medicines may be deadly poisons when taken in excess, so the remedial punishment of whipping becomes, if carried to excess, an evil no less culpable than the crime it professes to grapple will What has to be avoided is, not the use, but the excess. Mr. Livesey disposes of the humanitarian objection that the publishmen. is degrading by the observation that it is the crime, and not the nature of the retribution for crime, which degrades. The argument is summarised to the following effect. Corporal punishment is the most natural, scriptural, and effective. The offender alone suffers for his sin, whereas at present, by the imprisonment of the bread winner. the punishment is really borne by the wife and children of the offender. With the aubstitution of this form of punishment for imprisonment crime would be decreased. jails would become sparsely occupied and money would be saved to the State directly by the diminution of jail ex- in two volumes, "Manual of International penditure, and indirectly by the restoration to freedom and opportunity of labour of men who otherwise would be a burden upon

When Mr Abrahamson came here some four months ago he had two plots of land of 5.000 scree each, one he offered here, and this eventually became the property of the East Borneo Planting Company the other he had placed in the hands of some Singapore friends, but owing to various reasons the sale of this plot fell through, and when Mr. Abrahamson returned here the other day, he offered us the ground at the price of $25,000 net. and after consultation. the directors resolved to accept this offer, subject to your confirmation, rather than let the land pass into the hands of laud being adjoining, if not contiguous, to the original 5.000 acres, it would be undesirable to see it pass into hands other than our own. now beg to propose the following resolution $25,000 a selected block of 5,000 acres of land in British North Bornec, in the vicinity of the Company's present land, and for that purpose and to provide for the development of the whall determine "Before putting the resolution to the meeting I should be glad to hear anything any sharsholder present may wish to say on the

MR. RUSKIN ON WOMEN.

Mr. Ruskin has taken up his pen once more. and in a volume just published gives, the world by no means for the first time, his opinions on women, both what they are and what they ought quite untenable. The probable source of this to be. The reading public will be glad, to have curious ramour is that a convention was really Mr. Ruskin back on any kind of literary warpath signed within the past few days between Russia that he likes to select, and will rejoice to think that the illnesses from which the brilliant writer was some time are suffering have vanished, and laft him still mester of his unrivalled style and star aniseed, 53 packages sundries, 12 cases tea, his power to give good advice. The stone is not a very large one, and the complaint is this-that the ideal woman

'No wonder that, "in returning to my Shakespeare after such final reading of the realities of life as may have been permitted covery which he has made, and which we have just quoted. For the author of " Modern Painters" and "Fors Clavigera" is far too good critic to throw Shakespeare overboard altogether just because of this one alleged defect; in admiration of Stratford-on-Avon's lien Mr. Ruskin is perfectly certain to be behind nobody in the world. Yet there it is this blot on heroines who never labour, who are not lowly, who like preserving their complexions, and who have the crowning defect of being "dakes" daughters at the least." In contrast to Shakespeare Mr. Ruskin quotes the example of Scott, an old friend of his, who has given us in Jeannie Deans a heroine who is recognised as being about as perfect a type of woman as could b found, and who after all is a mere Scotch pear sant lassie, who thought it no disgrace to milk On Paris,old Scotch fashion. NOW PUBLISHING. ORIGINAL SERIAL STORY FROM THE PEN OF RIDER HAGGARD,

Author of "King Solomon's Mines," "Allan Quartermain," "She," "Jess," &c., &c. The Proprietors of this Journal are pleased to announce that they have, at a very considerable outlay, made arrangements with H. RIDER HAGGARD-the Author of the most popular and dramatic Stories of our day-by which their Readers will enjoy precedent perusal of a new and unpublished manuscript Story from his pen.

The Title of RIDER HAGGARD'S New Story is COLONEL QUARITCH, V.C. And the Opening Chapters appeared in THE "HONGKONG DAILY PRESS" OF SATURDAY, 21st JULY.

In this dramatic work, the author of "She makes a new departure. Instead of placing his characters in lauds remote from civilization and subjecting them to influences of the most re markable and unprecedented nature, he has here written an English treasure story of the present day. The hero is a soldier in the British army. a wearer of the Victoria Cross, who returns home from the recent operations in the Soudan, to exchange the perils and privations of warfare in the desert for a series of sensational incidents among pleasant English landscapes, and the ultimate reward of an ancestral home brightened Imperial Chinese Customs, to be obtained on clearness and a warm glow of local colour, while the main incidents are worked out with power, Passengers by this line have the option of pro- Not even in "King Solomon's Mines," when e ceeding Overland by the Southern Pacific and trance is effected into the mysterious chamber. unearths the treasure, hidden away from Crom-Passengers, who have paid full fare, re- well's soldiers, the recovery of which saves an Hongkong, 26th June, 1888.

An Anglo-Chinese Dictionary, published at Daily Press Office, Hongkong. For comprehensiveness and practical service this Work stands unrivalled. All the new words which the Chinese have of late years been compelled to coin to express the numerous objects in machinery, photography, telegraphy, and in science generally, which the rapid advance of foreign relations has imposed upon them, are here given in extenso. Each and every word is fully illustrated and explained, forming exercises for students of a most instructive nature. Both the Court and Punti pronunciations are given the accents being carefully marked on the best principle hitherto attained. The typography displays the success of an attempt to make the Chinese and English type correspond in the size of body, thereby effecting a vast economy of pace, achieving a clearness not previously attained, and dispensing with those vast margins and vacant spaces which have heretofore characterized Chinese publications. To illustrate the vast scope of the work the following facts are submitted for consideration: Chalmers Vocabulary contains about 16.000 Chinese characters, and Medhurst's English and Chinese Dictionary about 100,000, whilst this work contains more than 50,000 English words, and upwards of 600,000 Chinese characters. Again, despite all the grammars and other elementary works as yet published, the quires examples to display the various appli-cations and equivalents of different words which of the following Vessels during their stay in have one general meaning. Of these examples this work contains more than five times as

A DRAMATIST OF TO DAY. Being of an inquiring turn of mind and might get some amusement the other night from a well-known dramatist with whom I SICO, ANISETTE, &c., &c. was staying, by putting some leading questions to him in regard to his first-night sensations. Porhaps it may be as well to explain at the outset, however, that this was done with no thought of elucidating any principles of art or for anything more than the satisfaction of a very ordinary curiosity. If I have any serious thought about the stage at all, is that all " canons of art." dramatic criticism, histrionic psychology, and such things are entirely useless to a spectator who never by any change goes near the theatre-save for the exclusive purpose; of finding enjoyment and amusement. The of Excellent and High Finish. PERMANENT anodyne that Mr. Andrew Lang finds in a ENLARGEMENTS of PHOTOS, and VIEWS and novel I seek in a play. And that makes one reproductions of the same on Paper, Canvas, or good-natured-encourages one, as little Mr. Opal. Foker would say, to give a fellow a hand no matter though he may be tearing a passion to tatters or delivering a good jest with the grace of Sir William Harcourt in his lighter momenta. Curiously enough, though the reflection is an obvious one when pointed out, it had never struck me that not every dramatist is about to take a slap on the check with the undisturbed equanimity of Fielding or Charles Lamb, or judge his own work with the stern justice of La Fontaine, who not only swore to an unknown lady that his play was bad but claimed that he ought to know, seeing he Dressing Tables and Marele Tor Washhad made it bimself. If any other view of the question has struck me, it was that dramatists have a very singular habit of misinterpreting the sentiments of the audience. Often this takes the form of blaming the actors for distorting the parts; but it is more amusing when it finds expression in a discovery of enthusiasm where none exists as, for example, in the case of George Mitchell. When his "Union of the Clane" was brought on the stage by Wilkes, it was for several nights a conundrum to the London audience, who neither could catch the names or understand the allusions. At last they broke out into what in parliamentary reports are called ironical cheers, framing, as one might say, a brilliantly surcastic commentary on the silly performance. The manager was in despair, but not so the cappy Scotch author; " Deil
